Week's Picture Shows OFFERINGS AT LOCAL HOUSES

Pleasing Show at Bijou.

Those who remember the joyousness which permeated Mary Roberts Rinehardt's delightful story in the Saturday Evening Post of many months ago, entitled "Twenty-three and a Haif Hours' Leave," will hasten to see the screen production at the Bijou this week. The film is not a war picture no more than the story was a war story, and therein lies the charm of it. Douglas Maclean's interfretation of the mischief-loving young sergeant who was at the bottom of all the devilment in his company, according to his commanding general, familiarly known as "Old Hell Fire," shows him at his best as the lovable young scapegoat, "Old Hell Fire's" daughter. Peggy, played by Doris May, is exactly the sort of sweet young thing that gave many a young noncom an acute attack of heart trouble when he thought of going overseas and leaving her behind.

"Isle of Conquest" at Odcon.

At the Odeon today and tomorrow Norma Talmadge will be presented in "The Isle of Conquest," a magnificent picturization of the famous story of Anthur Hornblow, "By Right of Conquest." There are many unusual scenes in the production, one of the most beautiful of which is that of the castaways on a lonely isle.

Women Executed in Virginia.

D. E. McN., Fint, Mich.—Yea, there have been several executions of women in this State. Margaret Lassiley, colored, was hung in Danville about 1890 for aiding and abetting in the murder of her husband, and about three years ago a young negro woman was electrocuted in the penitentiary at Richmond for the murder of a woman in Hampion. There have been two or three other executions of women in the State, but we do not recall the exact dates. Women Executed in Virginia.

Maude Adams.

Mrs. E. M. F., Martinsville.—Maude Adams, actress, and stage name of Maude Ewell Adams Kiskadden, was born in Sait Lake City. November 11, 1872. She practically was born to the stage, making her first appearance when nine months old, and playing child parts in Utah and California until she was old enough to be sent to the Presbyterian School for Girls in Sait Lake City. When she was sixteen years old she joined the E. H. Sothern company, and has been on the stage ever since. Most of Mies Adams leis. Ure time is spent at her summer home. Lake Roukonkoma, on Long Island. Her hobby is farming, and she is very much interested in farm products, dairying and poultry raising and it is said her 500 acres of farming land is a profitable investment. Her tastes are extremely simple and she does not partake in the least of the extravagance of the average star.

Anecdotes of the Famous PERSONS IN WORLD NEWS.

Quinn Settled Word's Menning.
Representative Percy Quinn, of Mississippi, is possessed of psychic powers and a pipe. He believes in the exercise of both. Therefore, he spends much of the time in the Democratic cloakroom, coinfortably reclining on a couch, when matters in which he is not particularly interested is being discussed in the House. There he puffs his pipe and projects his pyschic powers. Demonstrating this, one day when the House met a word that no one could define and precipitated considerable debate, Mr. Quinn, who was in his favorite nock, suddenly appeared walking down the aisle carrying a weighty tome, opened, in his hand.

"Mr. Speaker," he said, "I make a point of order that the word means so and so, according to Mr. Webster's well-known dictionary." His point of order was sustained and Mr. Quinn retired to the cloakroom.

Robinson Strennous Speaker. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, hold-er of the American political "speed record," having been representative, Governor and Senator in sixteen days,

Governor and Senator in sixteen days, is known as a strong man from the South. He is both mentally and physically. He is likewise one of the most energetic speakers in Congress. When extended the atmosphere in his vicinity is filled with whirlpools and eddies from the thrashing of his arms in emphatic gestures.

When replying to a league of nations speech by Senator Reed, of Missouri, a few days ago, the Arkansan narrowly missed Senator Ransdeli, of Louisiana, several times with eloquent sweeps of his arms, The Louisiana sat nervously fingering his beard through the address. He was the first to congratulate Senator Robinson when he concluded, and it is not known whether he also thanked the strong Southerner for his deliverance.

A few days ago Judge John W. Hanshall's son, who has promised his mother he will not use his gun. His enemies soon discover that circumstance and take advantage of it. Some wonderfully picturesque views of the cattle country are shown.

Gish Farce Amusing.

Dorothy Gish and her company of furnakers in a characteristic picture called "Turning the Tables" is the offering at the Coionial Theater again today and tomorrow. It is a Paramount-Arteraft, and packed with the exuberant brand of fun furnished by Miss Gish. Another Bunny Comes to Fame.

There is today breaking into prominence in the movie world a brother of John Bunny, that early master of screen technique in the comedy field, who was loved by thousands before. Chaplin was known. His name is George Bunny.

Perhaps the best part which has been allotted to George Bunny so far, he is now playing in Owen Moore's first picture for Scienck, "Piccadiily Jim." It is a coinedy part, but not straight comedy, for George has the ability to mix coinedy and drama in his acting.

It is a difficult heritage which has

Her Fatal Admission.

After he had kissed her and pressed her rosy cheek against his and patted her soft, round chin she drew back and asked him:

"George, do you shave yourself?"

"Yes," he replied.

"I thought so," she said. "Your face is the roughest I ever—"

Then she stopped, but it was too late, and he went away with a lump in his throat.

"Wouldn't touch it if I were paid, especially after what happened to poor Duggle." "Why, what about him?" he was asked. "Choked to death in a hotel the other day," answered the friend "He was eating a piece of horse meat when some one said 'Whoa!"
